Tenancy Law and Housing Policy in Multi-level Europe - TENLaw project meeting
8-9 May 2015, Tartu, Estonia
Private tenancy law constitutes a nearly blank space in comparative and European law. This is due to its national character, its political nature and its embeddedness in widely diverging national housing policies, which ultimately reflect different welfare state models. Against this background, this project sets out to provide the first large-scale comparative and European law survey of tenancy law.
